

SPOKEN LANGUAGE 10 (2 credits)

Description

Spoken Language 10 is designed for students who are interested in studying First Peoples oral traditions and in developing their oral self-expression and communication in a variety of contexts. Within a supportive community, students will work individually and collaboratively to develop their writing skills and create coherent, purposeful, and engaging oral texts for a variety of purposes. This area of choice will provide students with opportunities for performance and public speaking.

The following are possible areas of focus within EFP Spoken Language 10:

- Performance—ideas include spoken word/slam poetry, poetry recitation, oral storytelling, readers' theatre, radio/podcasts/video posts related to First Peoples themes
- Oral tradition—ideas include oratory, local story knowledge, and oral history
- Professional applications—ideas include speech writing/presenting, proposals, interviewing, event facilitation, radio/podcasts/video posts (information items) related to First Peoples themes

Suggested interdisciplinary links:

- Oral performance (Arts Education)
- Presentations (Career Education)
- Self-assessment presentations (all subjects)
- First Peoples oral tradition informing land use (Social Studies)

Big Ideas – Elaborations

- text: any type of oral, written, visual, or digital expression or communication:
 - Visual texts include gestural and spatial components (as in dance) as well as images (some examples are posters, photographs, paintings, carvings, poles, textiles, regalia, and masks).
 - Digital texts include electronic forms of oral, written, and visual expression.
 - Multimodal texts include any combination of oral, written, visual, and/or digital elements and can be delivered via different media or technologies (some examples are dramatic presentations, web pages, music videos, online presentations, graphic novels, and close-captioned films).
- story: a narrative text that shares ideas about human nature, motivation, behaviour, and experience. Stories can record history, reflect a personal journey, or explore identity. Stories can be oral, written, or visual, and used to instruct, inspire, and/or entertain listeners and readers.
- Reconciliation: the movement to heal the relationship between First Peoples and Canada that was damaged by colonial policies such as the Indian residential school system.

Curricular Competencies – Elaborations

- strategies: Strategies used will depend on purpose and context. These may include making predictions, asking questions, paraphrasing, forming images, making inferences, determining importance, identifying themes, and drawing conclusions.
- how language constructs and reflects personal, social, and cultural identities: A person’s sense of identity is a product of linguistic factors or constructs, including oral tradition, story, recorded history, and social media; voice; cultural aspects; literacy history; and linguistic background (English as first or additional language)
- oral traditions: The means by which cultural transmission occurs over generations, other than through written records; among First Peoples, oral traditions may consist of told stories, songs and/or other types of distilled wisdom or information, often complemented by dance or various forms of visual representation such as carvings or masks. In addition to expressing spiritual and emotional truth (e.g., via symbol and metaphor), these traditions provide a record of literal truth (e.g., regarding events and/or situations). They were integrated into every facet of life and were the basis of First Peoples education systems. They continue to endure in contemporary contexts.
- exchange ideas and viewpoints:
 - using active listening skills and receptive body language (e.g., paraphrasing and building on others’ ideas)
 - disagreeing respectfully
 - extending thinking (e.g., shifting, changing) to broader contexts (e.g., social media, digital environments)
 - collaborating in large and small groups
- speaking and listening skills:
 - Strategies associated with speaking skills may include the conscious use of emotion, pauses, inflection, silence, and emphasis according to context.
 - Strategies associated with listening skills may include receptive body language, eye contact, paraphrasing building on others’ ideas, asking clarifying questions, and disagreeing respectfully.
- range of purposes: may include to understand, to inquire, to explore, to inform, to interpret, to explain, to take a position, to evaluate, to provoke, to problem solve, and to entertain
- writing and other creative processes: There are various writing and creative processes depending on context, and these may include determining audience and purpose, generating or gathering ideas, free-writing, making notes, drafting, revising and/or editing. Creative processes may also include conception, rehearsing, revising, and delivering/performing.
- audiences: Students expand their understanding of the range of real-world audiences. These can include children, peers, and community members, as well as technical, academic, and business audiences.
- refine oral and other texts to improve clarity and impact:
 - creatively and critically manipulating language for a desired effect
 - using techniques such as adjusting diction and form according to audience needs and preferences, using verbs effectively, using repetition and substitution for effect, maintaining parallelism, adding modifiers, and varying sentence types
 - for oral texts, consciously using emotion, pauses, inflection, silence, and emphasis
 - rehearsing with the help of a constructively critical listener, a mirror, and/or audiovisual recording

Content – Elaborations

- forms: Within a type of communication, the writer, speaker, or designer chooses a form based on the purpose of the piece. Common written forms include narratives; journals; procedural, expository, and explanatory documents; news articles; e-mails; blogs; advertisements; poetry; novels; and letters.
- genres: literary or thematic categories (e.g., science fiction, biography, satire, memoir, poem, visual essay, personal narrative, speech, oral history)
- Common themes in First Peoples texts:
 - connection to the land
 - the nature and place of spirituality as an aspect of wisdom
 - the relationships between individual and community
 - the importance of oral tradition
 - the experience of colonization and decolonization
 - loss of identity and affirmation of identity
 - tradition
 - healing
 - role of family
 - importance of Elders
- First Peoples oral traditions: Oral traditions are the means by which cultural transmission occurs over generations, other than through written records. Among First Peoples, oral traditions may consist of told stories, songs and/or other types of distilled wisdom or information, often complemented by dance or various forms of visual representation such as carvings or masks. In addition to expressing spiritual and emotional truth (e.g., via symbol and metaphor), these traditions provide a record of literal truth (e.g., regarding events and/or situations). They were integrated into every facet of life and were the basis of First Peoples education systems. They continue to endure in contemporary contexts.
- First Peoples oral texts: listen to and comprehend a wide range of authentic First Peoples oral texts reflecting a variety of purposes, messages, and contexts, including texts relating to life lessons, individual and community responsibilities, rites of passage - family histories - creation stories - formal speeches
- Protocols:
 - Protocols are rules governing behaviour or interactions.
 - Protocols can be general and apply to many First Peoples cultures, or specific to individual First Nations.
- ownership and use of First Peoples oral texts: Stories often have protocols for when and where they can be shared, who owns them, and who can share them.
- acknowledgement of territory:
 - students understand the protocols involved in the acknowledgment of traditional First Nations territory(ies)
 - students understand the purpose of acknowledgement of First Nations traditional territory(ies)
- situating oneself in relation to others and place:
 - relates to the concept that everything and everyone is connected
 - students understand the reason why it is common First Nations practice to introduce ones' self by sharing family and place connections

Content – Elaborations

- Text features: attributes or elements of the text that may include typography (bold, italics, underlining, font choice), guide words, key words, titles, diagrams, captions, labels, maps, charts, illustrations, tables, photographs, and sidebars/text boxes
- structures: how text is organized
- in First Peoples oral and other texts: for example, circular, iterative, cyclical
- function: the intended purpose of a text
- reading strategies: There are many strategies that readers use when making sense of text. Students consider what strategies they need to use to “unpack” text. They employ strategies with increasing independence depending on the purpose, text, and context. Strategies include but may not be limited to predicting, inferring, questioning, paraphrasing, using context clues, using text features, visualizing, making connections, summarizing, identifying big ideas, synthesizing, and reflecting.
- metacognitive strategies:
 - thinking about our own thinking
 - reflecting on our processes and determining strengths and challenges
 - Students employ metacognitive strategies to gain increasing independence in learning.
- writing processes: There are various writing processes, depending on context. These may include determining audience and purpose, generating or gathering ideas, free-writing, making notes, drafting, revising and/or editing. Writers often have very personalized processes when writing. Writing is an iterative process.
- oral language strategies: speaking with expression, connecting with listeners, asking questions to clarify, listening for specifics, summarizing, paraphrasing
- elements of style: stylistic choices that make a specific writer distinguishable from others, including diction, vocabulary, sentence structure, and tone
- usage: avoiding common usage errors (e.g., double negatives, mixed metaphors, malapropisms, and word misuse)
- conventions: common practices of standard punctuation in capitalization, quoting, and spelling of Canadian and First Peoples words
- acknowledgements: formal acknowledgements of another person’s work, idea, or intellectual property
- literary elements and devices: Texts use various literary devices, including figurative language, according to purpose and audience.
- rhetorical devices: examples include figurative language, parallelism, repetition, irony, humour, exaggeration, emotional language, logic, direct address, rhetorical questions, and allusion
- acknowledgements: formal acknowledgements of another person’s work, idea, or intellectual property
